Introduction

The increasing impact of technology, particularly artificial intelligence, in our daily personal and professional lives, raises new and unique rights and obligations, which quickly come within the purview of the law and the legal profession. It is up to the lawyers to interpret and apply existing laws, as well as to be catalysts for the creation of future legislation, thereby bridging the gap between technical innovations and legal regulation, which must be primarily aimed at preserving the highest standards of human rights.

The responsibility of lawyers in this regard is extremely great, and the success of their work in bridging the gap, in the post- AI world, depends not only on traditional legal knowledge and skills, but also on digital competencies and digital skills. As the implementation of technology, including AI is already beginning to have an impact on all areas of law and regulation, all lawyers, no matter in which legal systems they practice, must commit to acquiring the skills and knowledge for the understanding and use of these technologies, so as to be effective advocates, ensuring that in bridging the gap, human rights are indeed protected.

We look forward to seeing you in Novi Sad!

09:45 – 11:15 RIGHTS OF THE DIGITAL PERSON, HUMAN RIGHTS AND CRIMINAL LAW – Identification of Criminal Activity with Public Technology – Identifying the gap: technology has capabilities but where do we draw the line between opposing policies of tech and law/human rights

The use of Information and Communications technology (ICT) in the execution of criminal acts is becoming so pervasive that soon the clear line between high-tech crime and general crime will be erased. As criminals resort increasingly to technology in the commission of crimes, necessarily, the legal system must adapt its tools to prevent crime. With the advent of modern technologies, including AI, it is inevitable that such technologies will be used in the criminal justice system. Yet the use of technologies in crime prevention cannot be unfettered; there must be a balance between the use of technological innovations and the protection of the Rule of Law and human rights.

One of the most current issues threatening this balance between technology and human rights in the crime prevention context arises with the implementation of artificial intelligence in criminal proceedings through the models of so-called predictive justice and the use of remote biometric face identification. This panel will examine the limits of using such technology and the role that lawyers play in protecting against abuses of technology that violate basic human rights standards.

Programme

11:15 – 11:45 COFFEE BREAK

11:45 – 13:15 LABOUR AND EMPLOYMENT

As AI continues to evolve, its impact on the workplace is profound, presenting both opportunities and challenges. One of the most pressing challenges is the responsible use of software and algorithms used in hiring. Such technology, if not properly used, can perpetuate bias and discrimination in the hiring and evaluation process. The lack of transparency in AI decision-making processes, often referred to as the “black box” problem, can lead to unfair treatment and legal disputes. When litigation ensues, who, then, is liable to employees claiming discrimination? Is it the employer who purchased the software? The software developer? Both? Neither? This panel will examine the opportunities and challenges raised by the use of software and algorithms in employment, and particularly in hiring, and how courts are grappling with the question of liability when discrimination occurs.

MODERATOR & SPEAKER: ▪ Piergiorgio BONACOSSA, RPLT RP legalitax, Milan, Italy

- Calin Viorel IUGA, IUGA & Asociatii, Cluj-Napoca, Romania
- Dr. Darko BOŽIČIĆ, University of Novi Sad Faculty of Law, Assistant Professor, Labour Law Department, Novi Sad, Serbia

13:15 – 14:45 LUNCH

14:45 – 16:00 IP – IP, BIOTECHNOLOGY, AND FOOD SCIENCE

Biotechnology and food science – with their profound implications for health, food, agriculture, and environmental sustainability – thanks to technology, including artificial intelligence, are advancing at an unprecedented pace. However, these advancements also pose complex legal and ethical questions. How do we ensure that these technologies are used responsibly? How do we protect the rights of innovators, who until now, have mostly been human, while ensuring that life-saving treatments and safe food products are accessible?

Enter intellectual property law, which is the guardian of innovation, ensuring that creators and inventors receive credit for their contributions, while fostering an environment where creativity and innovation can flourish. But with the use of technology and the rapid advancements in biotechnology and food science – which may now include non-human innovators – existing IP frameworks and legal contexts may no longer be useful or applicable. This panel will explore ways in which artificial intelligence is being used in biotech and food science, the challenges and risks, and ways in which existing IP laws must adapt to keep pace.

MODERATOR: ▪ Nicola LATTANZI, Vice President of the UIA Intellectual Property Commission, Eversheds Sutherland, Milan, Italy

SPEAKERS:

- Barbara J. GISLASON, UIA Chief Editor of the Jurist International, Law Office of Barbara J. Gislason, Fridley, MN, USA
- Dr. Sanja SAVČIĆ, University of Novi Sad Faculty of Law, Full Professor, Civil Law Sciences Department, Novi Sad, Serbia
- Additional speaker to be confirmed

16:00 – 16:30 COFFEE BREAK

16:30 – 17:45 FAMILY LAW AND IMMIGRATION

In many cases, the impact of AI will be greatest on families and children. The law must evolve alongside this progress to safeguard the rights of the most vulnerable individuals, ensuring they are not endangered.

First and foremost, there is a need to consider the privacy implications of using AI in family law cases, particularly regarding sensitive personal information and in light of data protection laws. Furthermore, there is a possibility that biases in AI algorithms will impact outcomes in family law cases, particularly with respect to race, gender, and socio-economic status. Finally, there is a need for clear regulations that will govern the use of AI in family law cases. It is necessary for some standards and rules to be determined, such as transparency, fairness and responsibility.

Bleeding over into the realm of family law, is the status of immigrants, both legal and illegal, who often find themselves before family courts. Their immigrant status is often a complicating factor, but must be considered, and their rights must also be protected. This is especially true when AI is used to determine their legal status. This panel will discuss the impact of AI on family law cases, including when those cases involve migrants.

MODERATOR: ▪ Boško KAĆANSKI, Attorney, Law Firm Kacanski, Translator, Novi Sad, Serbia

SPEAKERS:

- Hervé LINDER, President of the UIA Immigration and Nationality Law Commission, Ernst & Linder LLC, New York, NY, USA
- Dr. Zoran LONČAR, University of Novi Sad Faculty of Law, Full Professor, Department of Public Law, Novi Sad, Serbia

10:45 – 11:15 COFFEE BREAK

11:15 – 12:00 THE FUTURE OF THE LAWYERS – THE FUTURE OF LAWYERS COMMISSION

Digitalization and the development of information and communication technologies, especially artificial intelligence, have affected all segments of life and work, including the work of lawyers. As AI increasingly becomes a necessary tool for the practice of law and in the legal system, all lawyers must acquire digital competence and digital skills to be able to respond to all challenges of modern society. Similarly, law schools must recognize that, with the advent of AI, traditional legal training and skills will not be sufficient for lawyers to successfully perform their duties. Therefore, law schools bear a special responsibility to re-think how they prepare students to enter the practice of law. This panel will examine what the future with AI looks like and how students and lawyers alike can best prepare.

All cancellations due to a visa refusal must be sent in writing and reach the UIA before the seminar. Cancellations must be accompanied by a proof of visa refusal. If your visa is issued after the seminar date or if you do not have proof of visa refusal, you will not be entitled to a refund.

FORCE MAJEURE

“Force majeure” means any events external to the parties, of both an unforeseeable and insurmountable nature that prevents either the client or the participants, or the agency or service providers involved in organising the seminar, from executing all or part of the obligations provided for in the present agreement. By express agreement, “force majeure” includes but is not limited to a strike affecting the means of transport; hotel staff; air traffic controllers; an insurrection; a riot; an epidemic or pandemic; or any prohibition whatsoever decreed by governmental or public authorities.

It is expressly agreed that for the parties, a case of force majeure would suspend the execution of their reciprocal obligations. At the same time, each of the parties shall bear the burden of all the expenses incumbent upon them, resulting from the case of “force majeure”.

HEALTH

The organisers decline any responsibility in case of any health problems existing prior to the seminar that may lead to complications or be aggravated during the entire period of the stay, including but not limited to: pregnancy, cardio-vascular problems, any allergies, special diets, any disorders under treatment and not yet resolved on the day the seminar starts, psychic or mental or depressive illness, etc. (Non exhaustive list).
